RCRA/SUPERFUND HOTLINE SUMMARY

Must the owner or operator of a container storage facility in a downtown area check all nearby businesses for the possibility of injection or withdrawal wells in accordance with the 270.14(b)(19)(ix) topographic map requirement?

No, the owner or operator of the container storage facility does not have to check with the individual businesses in the city. He could, however, check with the city water department for potential wells. The State or city may also have a well drillers licensing board which could provide that information.
