

List of the references provided to SAB Mercury Review Panel Members in electronic copy in response to a panel member's request for copies of the studies used by EPA to estimate fish intake in relevant populations

(Electronic copies not posted on the SAB web site due to copyright considerations)

Burger, J. (2002). Daily consumption of wild fish and game: Exposures of high end recreationalists, International Journal of Environmental Health Research, 12:4, p. 343-354, July, 2010.

Burger, J., Stephens, W. L., Boring, C. S., Kuklinski, M., Gibbons, J. W., Gochfeld M. Factors in Exposure Assessment: Ethnic and Socioeconomic Differences in Fishing and Consumption of Fish Caught along the Savannah River. Risk Analysis, Vol. 19, No. 3, 1999, p. 427

Dellinger, John A. (2004). Exposure assessment and initial intervention regarding fish consumption of tribal members of the Upper Great Lakes Region in the United States. Environmental Research, 95 325–340

Moya. J., Itkiin, C., Selevan, S.G., Rogers, J.W., Clickner, R. P. (2008). Estimates of fish consumption rates for consumers of bought and self-caught fish in Connecticut, Florida, Minnesota, and North Dakota. Science of the Total Environment oi:10.1016/j.scitotenv.2008.05.023

Shilling, Fraser, Aubrey White, Lucas Lippert, Mark Lubell (2010). Contaminated fish consumption in California's Central Valley Delta. Environmental Research 110, p. 334-344.