Subject: Damages of Hydrolic fracturing to our environment:

Dear Edward Hanlon and Environmental Protection Agency,

My concern for safe drinking water for all Americans is the issue. Are we returning to the 19th century where all companies have free reign to pollute our water? Hydrolic fracturing should require strict environment oversight. Please carefully review its damaging effects on our health, and the irreversible pollution it causes to our water and air, and require laws to be enforced that will keep this process from destroying our lives and our natural resources. What is the clean water act for?????

Sincerely,

Susan Smith Rosenthal
